LATROBE SEEKING
MORE RAILWAYS.*Delegation Here Today Urging West Penn to Extend Its Lines.*FROM CHAMBER OF COMMERCE*They Are Taken Over the System by Superintendent of Lighting W. R. Kenney After Talking With Officials Here.

Latrobe wants the trolley lines extended and the rich territory surrounding that city developed. That is the business the delegation which came here today had to talk over with the officials of the West Penn. The delegation consisted with Superintendent M. A. Coffey, Superintendent of Lighting W. R. Kenney, Chief Engineer J. L. Fritsch and eight of way agents. The committee not only represented the sentiment of the business men of Latrobe, but that of the farmers along the proposed line to New Alexandria, who held a meeting last evening and strongly endorsed the attitude of the Latrobe Chamber of Commerce on the trolley line proposition.

It was a representative delegation of business men that came here to urge the early building of a line, some seven miles long, to New Alexandria, and to also urge the extension of the Latrobe Street Railways Company's line from Youngstown to Hecla, connecting Latrobe with the main line of the West Penn and giving trolley connection with Greensburg. In the party were Editor Thomas M. Whiteman of the Latrobe Bulletin, John D. Miller, formerly of Connellsville but now a hotel proprietor of Latrobe, C. H. McLaughlin and James H. Albert, merchants, Postmaster C. O. Blayter, Thomas C. Anderson, a business man, and Joseph M. Kelly, a Pittsburgh real estate man who makes his home in Latrobe. Superintendent T. N. Shaw of the Latrobe Street Railway Company accompanied the party to Connellsville.

After talking the matter over with the officials here the delegation was taken over the system in charge of Superintendent of Lighting W. R. Kenney. They inspected the mammoth power plant at Fayette, which makes Latrobe at night as bright as day; went on to Uniontown for dinner and then visited the south end trolley lines.

John B. Miller had an opportunity to renew old acquaintances both here and in Uniontown. Years ago he was manager of the Western Union office here and was the first Republican to hold the office of Register and Recorder in Fayette county. He now conducts one of the leading hotels in Latrobe.

Work Begins on New School Steps

Work was started this morning by Contractors Huttler & Donnelly on the new concrete steps which are to grace the approach to the High School and Fourth ward buildings. The stones forming the old steps are being removed today. They are being taken to the Greenwood school and stored there, it being the intention to use them for steps there when the grounds about that school are beautified.

The contractors will push the work on the steps as rapidly as possible in order to have the work completed by the time school opens on September 1.

Four Drunks Face Burgess

Four drunks faced Burgess Evans in police court this morning and were given the usual sentences. George Marks of Vanderbilt took too many drinks and was acting suspiciously with a .22 calibre rifle. The police picked him up. He said he kept a shooting gallery in Vanderbilt and came here last night to get a gun that had been taken from him. He found it at one of the galleries and was taking it back. Burgess Evans said he should keep sober when carrying firearms and refused to accept a watch as security for the $5 fine imposed.

Pat Durkin, a veteran coal digger, in searching for work. "Of course I wasn't sober," he confided to the Burgess. He was given 18 hours. Owen Mullin of Johnstown was just leaving town when Officer Gelfer caught him on Water street. His exit was delayed two days. Wase Siddles was disorderly at his boarding house and got 72 hours. He was awfully drunk at the same time.

Adjournment
Coming Next Week

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—Speedy action on the cotton revision bill and other legislation still pending in Congress will be taken by the middle of next week, Majority Leader Underwood stated today. He believes adjournment will be taken by Thursday next at the latest. Congressman Underwood stated that the cotton bill passed by the Senate, which is practically the same as that passed by the House, will be acted on the first of the week.

Steadfast will in all probability be disposed of and the iron and steel schedule, as revised by the Ways and Means Committee may be accepted.

Noisy Start for Dixmont Asylum

Special to The Courier.
UNIONTOWN, Aug. 18.—Sheriff P. A. Johns and Deputy Sheriff Garret Evans had a busy time this morning when they started for Dixmont with two insane persons, Thomas Smith, a Connellsville negro, and Mrs. Mary Goshel of New Salem. Smith was docile and gave the officers no trouble. On the contrary, Mrs. Goshel was demonstrative. At the Baltimore and Ohio depot she created a scene, uttering hideous noises and creating considerable disturbance. She offered no resistance but her actions gave the officers considerable embarrassment.

COL. ROOSEVELT
TAKES ALL BLAME*In the Tennessee Coal & Iron Deal With U. S. Steel*IN A SIGNED EDITORIAL*In the Outlook This Week—Says He Desist With Conditions as They Existed and Did Not Stop to Look for the Motive.

United Press Telegram.
NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—Emphasizing his desire to shoulder the entire responsibility for permitting the steel trust to gobble up the Tennessee Coal & Iron Company during the panic days of 1907, Col. Theodore Roosevelt in a signed editorial in The Outlook declares he has no apologies to offer the public for what he did.

"Nobody need feel either concern or hope as to whether anything done by my administration will be 'discovered,'" he says, "for the excellent reason that there is nothing hidden. It was not my business, neither was it in my power, to search the hidden domain of motive, and my action was conditioned not upon what I believed to be the motives actuating the steel corporation, but upon my belief that the action they proposed taking would be enormously to the benefit of the community at large at that particular moment."

"Whether the chief motive of their action was to absorb the Tennessee Coal & Iron Company, or whether their chief motive was to save the (Moore & Schley, stock brokers) and threaten all New York firm from failure thereby stop the panic, was of no question to me. That both motives were in their minds, I thought possible, and still think possible. What was the predominant motive was of no consequence. My concern was that action should be taken and the situation saved in the interests of the people of the United States."

"Most people have short memories, but if anyone will look back and think the situation over carefully he will understand it was not a question of saving any bank or trust company from failure; the question was of saving the plain people, the common people; of all parts of the United States from dreadful misery and suffering; and this was what my action did."

"One of the questions put to me incidentally disbelieved that the action taken was really efficient in stopping the panic. At the time and for some months thereafter, no man would have ventured to express such disbelief unless prepared to be greeted with derision by every human being who knew anything whatever of the actual facts."

"The action taken was in my judgment the only action that could stop the panic, and it most certainly was of enormous, and in all human probability, of decisive influence in actually stopping it."

"Certain other questions related to the enormous value of the coal and ore lands of the Tennessee Coal & Iron Company, has no bearing on the purchase of four years ago. The purchase as made did not by itself, affect the status of the steel corporation, so far as the Sherman law was concerned. I dealt with facts as they were, not with facts as they might afterward become."

In connection with the editorial the colonel also prints his prepared statement which was carried in full in despatches at the time he was on the stand before the Stanley congressional committee.

Aviator Atwood Making Good Time

United Press Telegram.
CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 18.—Aviator Harry Atwood will continue his flight from St. Louis to New York or Boston today. He is scheduled to leave this city at 3 o'clock or perhaps before that time if weather conditions are good. From Cleveland his general route will be Ashland, Ohio; Erie, Pa.; Dunkirk, N. Y. He probably will be in Buffalo on Saturday, following eastward from there with the tracks of the New York Central railroad as his course to Syracuse, Utica, Schenectady and Albany.

The Bostonian has now traveled 643 miles from his starting point in St. Louis. He has still 622 miles to fly to reach New York. His total time actually in the air is 13 hours and 15 minutes.

Blowing of whistles and the cheering of people crowded on the roofs of office buildings made Atwood's entry into Cleveland, shortly before 6 o'clock as thrilling as the previous one he made at St. Louis, Chicago and Toledo.

Atwood this morning talked to a representative of the United Press as follows before starting his flight eastward:

"New York first and above anything else. That's my slogan. I don't care anything about exhibition flights. I am not a circus performer. But I do want to reach New York in the quickest possible time. That's my ambition, to break this cross-country record for flights, and I mean to do it."

"This trip has been a regular picnic so far. I haven't had any alarms at all. I've enjoyed every inch of my journey. Of course it's always thrilling to speed through the air, but I haven't been threatened with a mishap of any sort. If it continues so, I shall easily reach New York in less than seven days."

"Flights never should be made when conditions are unfavorable or positively unsafe. Because of the air meet promoters insistence, flying is sometimes done when it is nothing but the sure wasting of lives. Responsibility for the barbarous deaths of Wm. Badger and St. Croix Johnstone at Chicago rests with the promoters of that meet."

Colonel Barnhart
Host to Soldiers

Twenty-five members of Company D, including Captain A. R. Kidd and Lieutenant J. C. Herwick, enjoyed a splendid corn roast last evening at Sunnyside, the Dunbar township home of Comrade James J. Barnhart. The company made the trip by trolley and remained until the last car left for home. Owing to the severe storm which blew up during the evening the spread was enjoyed indoors.

Naturally, roasting ears formed the major portion of the repast, but there was an abundance of apple pie, cakes of various kinds, bananas and other fruit. When the storm about a big bonfire was built in the orchard and the boys amused themselves until time for the last car to leave. All heartily expressed appreciation for the royal reception accorded them by "Comrade Jim."

Delay Resuming Fire House Work

The Connellsville Construction Company will probably not resume work on the new fire house for several days. Manager A. M. Haines said this morning this was because the sub-contractor working on the excavation would not be ready by that time.

It is not unlikely that an appeal will be taken from the decision of the court dissolving the injunction but it is not believed that this will result more seriously than to cause delay in the erection of the building.

STRIKERS PRESENT
A SOLID FRONT.*English Laborers Face Rifles and Guns of Army and Navy.*BREAD RIOTS IN LIVERPOOL*Bakeries and the Big Grocery Establishments Are Stormed by Mobs and Provisions Carried Off—Crowds Care Little For Bayonet.

United Press Telegram.
LONDON, Aug. 18.—With the rifles of the British army turned against them and the muzzles of the great guns of the British navy pointed on them the British laborers engaged in a great struggle for higher wages and human working hours present an unflinching front today. Government officials admit that within three days all means of railroad transportation will be tied up and within six days without any transportation starvation conditions will prevail in four-fifths of the homes of the large cities of England.

LIVERPOOL, Aug. 18.—Bread riots have begun here. A mob of men and women maddened by hunger today stormed the bakeries and big grocery establishments and carried away food. Money and other valuable articles were untouched. Serious rioting is in evidence in most of the cities. By night-fall the situation will be beyond the control of the police as the temper of the mob is very bitter. Women whose babies are dying from the lack of milk and who are frenzied by suffering are in many instances at the head of the mobs. They care little for the bayonets of the soldiers.

The scavengers have joined the strikers and the city garbage is not being removed and from that source an epidemic is feared.

Thousands who daily make their journey to the downtown section of London in the underground tubes attempted today to use the buses and few surface cars that were being operated, but hundreds of thousands gave up the effort to reach their places of business. Late this afternoon no effort had been made to operate the railways by soldiers. The military was used only to guard depots, trains and crossings.

Word from Lancashire is to effect that 75,000 miners there and at Chesham will be thrown out of employment tonight as the result of the inability of the railroads to move the coal that is being mined.

Reports from strike leaders in all parts of Great Britain are that the strike order is generally being observed and nearly all the men have walked out. The four great Irish railway systems are tied up today as the result of the men quitting work this morning. Only 2,000 are out at Glasgow but it is expected Scotland's means of transportation will be at an end with a walkout tonight.

Fayette B. & L.
Adopts By-Laws

At a stockholders' meeting in the Chamber of Commerce rooms last evening the new Fayette Building & Loan Association adopted by-laws for the conduct of its business. The by-laws were discussed and altered after consideration by those present. The rough draft was submitted by Attorney E. C. Higbee and proved generally satisfactory, but few changes being made.

The annual meeting of the association will be held the fourth Monday of each October. The Directors will meet on the first Friday of each month. Some changes were made from the mode of operation followed by the two older associations which are regarded as an improvement and an advantage.

Strong Sentiment Against Madero

United Press Telegram.
MEXICO CITY, Mexico, Aug. 18.—Despite the execution of 100 alleged outlaws in Pueblo disquieting reports of further anti-government demonstrations continue to reach the capital. In all instances there appears a growing dislike for Francisco I. Madero and opposition to his candidacy for the presidency.

The bandits shot by the firing squad were of the anti-Madero element which is strongest in the southern States. It was in Pueblo that the revolution which ousted President Diaz had its birth and now Madero is the object of opposition.

Dr. Strickler is Operated On

Special to The Courier.
SCOTTSDALE, Aug. 18.—Dr. A. W. Strickler was operated on yesterday afternoon at the Mt. Pleasant hospital for an internal trouble that had given him intense pain for about a week and which showed no sign of subsiding. Dr. H. W. Stewart of Mercy hospital, accompanied by his assistant Dr. Griffith came out from Pittsburgh to perform the operation. Dr. J. P. Strickler, the patient's son, and several Scottsdale physicians were present during the operation. The diagnosis made earlier in the week as to kidney trouble was borne out.

The patient was reported this morning to be resting as well as could be expected from the serious condition in which he is. Mrs. Strickler and the doctors' sister, Mrs. E. C. Porter, went to the hospital on an early car.

Talk Water on Brimstone Corner

County Organizer J. C. Young of the Socialist party is scheduled to deliver an address on Brimstone Corner this evening under the auspices of the local Socialist organization.

Mr. Young has taken as his subject: "Pure Water at Cost" and will discuss the water question, which the Socialists have been trying to keep alive since Council made it plain no new contract was being considered at this time.

The water question cannot be regarded as a live issue at this time but Organizer Young will deliver arguments in favor of municipal ownership and incidentally foster the candidacy of W. C. Jones for Mayor and Dr. S. D. Woods for Controller on the Socialist ticket.

Methodist Picnic at Killarney Park

Today is Methodist Day at Killarney park, the attraction being a joint picnic of the Methodist Episcopal and Methodist Protestant Sunday schools. Both Sunday schools were well represented, the picnicers being mostly grown persons. Three special cars were attached to regular B. & O. train No. 48 for the accommodation of the picnicers. The number of tickets sold was 253, 170 of which were full fare tickets and 83 half fare.

Free transportation was furnished all members of the Methodist Episcopal Sunday school, who could not afford to buy a ticket, while the Methodist Protestant Sunday school furnished free transportation to all children under 12 years of age.

Mail Notices for Contract Meeting

Notices were mailed yesterday to all High School teachers announcing the meeting to be held Saturday afternoon, September 2, for the purpose of signing contracts prior to the beginning of the school term on the following Monday. Notices to the grade teachers, most of whom reside in Connellsville, will be mailed early next week.

Although sentiment of the board favored an earlier date for signing the contracts the fact that a uniform form must be used, and that a draft of it was delayed in arriving from the State Superintendent made it impossible to carry out this plan.

SURETY CASE SETTLEDBefore Squire, the Defendant Paying the Costs.

Charles R. Jacobs, colored, was given a hearing this morning before Squire P. M. Buttermore of the West Side, on a charge of robbery of the peace, made by his wife, Mrs. Charles R. Jacobs of Pittsburgh.

The defendant was employed at a local hotel at one time, and his wife came here from Pittsburgh and had him arrested. She claimed he had mistreated her and at various times had threatened her life. Constable R. A. Smith of the West Side arrested Jacobs. The case was settled by the defendant paying the costs.

SOCIALISTS LEAD

Special to The Courier.
UNIONTOWN, Aug. 18.—Although a few weeks remain in which to file petitions for the September primary, a number of petitions are already on file. The Socialists have taken the lead and have practically a complete list of candidates in the field. The Prohibitionists have, as yet, failed to put forth any office seekers. Republican candidates are somewhat backward but these positions will be reversed before the last day for filing the papers.

There are many candidates ambitious to become Poor Directors, which seems to be a favorite office on both the Republican and Democratic tickets. The candidates who have filed their papers up to noon today were the following:

Severe Storm
Last Evening

A severe storm swept Connellsville last evening, continuing for the better part of an hour. It began raining shortly after 7 o'clock, and an hour later the rain was coming down in torrents, accompanied by severe lightning and thunder.

The temperature remains sultry. Last evening 85 degrees was recorded at 5 P. M. and this morning it was 73.

No Arrangements for Picnic.
As yet no arrangements have been made for the second annual picnic of the Lower Tyrone township schools to be held some time in September. Last year the picnic was held at the Gant school house and was such a success that it was voted to make it an annual event. The committee will likely get together soon and make some arrangements for the gathering.

Colonel Bryan Takes a Fall Out Of Rep. Underwood, Majority Leader.

United Press Telegram.
LINCOLN, Neb., Aug. 18.—William Jennings Bryan has created a new term in statesmanship and political annals in this week's Commonsense, he says, in commenting on Congressman Underwood's charge that Congressmen James had "played to the galleries."

Mr. Underwood withdrew the language and apologized, but those who belong to Mr. Underwood's class will hardly give up the use of the term. We may expect to hear the defenders of the public denounced as gallery statesmen, just as we have heard them denounced as demagogues.

"But we cannot think of a gallery statesman without thinking of the statesman who does not play to the gallery. What shall we call them? How would 'parquet statesmen' do? As Mr. Underwood prides himself that he does not play to the galleries, it is not unfair to assume that he plays to those who occupy seats in the parquet and in the private boxes. If he can afford to be 'parquet statesman,' Mr. James can afford to be a 'gallery statesman.' How would it do to have an investigation committee see how many Democratic members take the galleries into consideration and how many give their attention exclusively to those who occupy high-priced seats?"

Bryan propounds these three questions for Underwood's consideration. "First, why did he irritate him to have a water power company?"

Second, why did he impugn the motives of a fellow member of the Ways and Means Committee?"

Third, why did he use the stock phrase employed by the representatives of predatory corporations when they are denouncing those who defend public interests?"

"Mon like Mr. Underwood cannot think of anything more offensive than to say of a man that he is 'playing to the galleries'?"

"When Mr. Underwood accused Mr. James of winning his senatorial fight by an appeal to the galleries, he gave the public an interior view of himself. He looks at questions from the egotistic standpoint, he has a contempt for those who appeal to the masses."

Bride Smiles as Wiley Testifies

United Press Telegram.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—This first on the scene and the most cheerful of all in the room of the House committee conducting the investigation were Dr. Harvey W. Wiley and his bride. As the Chief Chemist took the stand to resume his story of the alleged "cabal" against him, a tale that has thrilled even blase Washington, Mrs. Wiley gave her husband a smile and a nod.

As to the attitude of Assistant Chemist Dunlap, Wiley said: "His attitude is that no opinion of the Bureau of Chemistry is official until he has approved it. The Secretary decides which bulletins of the Bureau of Chemistry shall be published but not the advice of others than the author. Some of the bulletins I prepared were in the hands of the Solicitor."

CHAPTER XI.

(I went back to the house. Clara had left my uncle's room and I heard her voice mingled with Bruce's on the lawn below. Uncle Abner had arisen and was carefully examining his papers as he rearranged them in their customary order. He had been hurt but little and now that his blood was circulating freely again and the stiffness was disappearing from his limbs he was not suffering bodily to amount to anything. But his humor was beastly. The look which he greeted me as I entered was almost carnivorous.

"This is what comes of housing fly-brights who spend their money staying in hotels when they should be at home in the beds which they have already paid for," he snarled. "If you had been here it would not have happened. I don't believe there was more than one thief, and he could not have held you if you had any fight in you."

"He probably would not have tried it. At any rate, had I resisted I would have stood an excellent chance of being killed. Men who enter the houses of others to commit a crime at night know that they hold their own lives in the hollow of their hands and are prepared to meet resistance with bloodshed," I returned somewhat testily. But the coolness of my tones only made his wrath flame the hotter.

"It don't make any difference. It was your business to be here when you know there was so much money in the house instead of running away like a coward and leaving me to protect it all alone. And I suppose you expect you will inherit some of it after I am gone, but I'll show you," he yelled. The direct intimation that he would ignore me upon his death bed, and that he considered my life of late consequence than a fraction of his wealth, turned me from him with-out a word.

I went to my own room, where I stood at the window looking upon the grounds below. Bruce and Clara were wandering aimlessly about, and even at that distance I could see the worry that lay upon her face. As for Bruce, he seemed to have recovered a good deal of his old-time assurance. But presently he turned away with a curt nod while she stood for a moment watching him with a pathetic little clamping of her hands; then, turned and came hurriedly into the house. I intercepted her at the head of the stairs and signalled for her to come into my apartments. She did so, seating herself in a chair that I drew for her. "Well," I said inquiringly. She shook her head.

Sympathetically I continued: "It is really too bad and I don't understand it either. Nobody in the world has more confidence in Bruce's honesty than I have, and if he would only speak I would believe him against a host of circumstances. But there are certain things which he as a man should come forward and explain. He did not produce the key and denied ever having had it, while I know it was in his possession yesterday. The only thing we could get out of him was his permission for us to go to an uncomfortable place. Have you any idea of how he became possessed of the key to the house which I saw him have yesterday?"

"I have not—assuming that you are right. We have been talking that same matter over and he says he had no key in his side coat pocket and never carries one there. I know that I never gave him mine, and his disappearance at this time can be nothing more than a strange coincidence. He also denies that he ever at any time had possession of my key, and I am satisfied that he did not for the reason that if he had I should have missed it. I don't care a snap what anybody thinks or says; I know Bruce as well as you do, and I know that he had it as you seem to be over his denial." Her mouth set defiantly and I knew she would defend him to the last ditch should I attack him, which, of course, I had not the remotest idea of doing. Instead, I became even more mollified, hoping to reason him out of his stubbornness through argument addressed to her.

"I know that his denial proves nothing any more than does the fact of his going broke on 'change, or his making that silly remark that he was going to get $10,000 some way. Neither would his refusal to tell us where he spent the night prejudice me, although it might seem somewhat singular, and under the circumstances be sufficient to arouse suspicion in those who do not know him. But the combination of all these things places him in a position before LeDuc which I regret to see him occupy. You and I have often discussed his outspokenness, and you have said that he did not know that there was a back door to anything. It is his present complete reversal of form and his evident desire to cover up something that ought to be revealed that puzzles me. Why don't he come out as he has always done before and tell us where he was at the time this happened? If for any reason he does not care to tell you, he at least might confide in me, knowing as he does that any secret would be safe in my keeping. Then I could investigate his statement merely as a matter of form, and having found it true I could satisfy LeDuc or anybody else without going into particulars. If on the other hand there is any reason why he can't care to take you or me into his conscience, he could at least talk to LeDuc, who would keep his secret equally sacred, and we would be none the wiser. I sincerely regret his obstinacy, for even though it does not get him into any particular trouble it may compel him to go through an ordeal that may be unpleasant for us all. I know LeDuc well enough to believe that he will get at the bottom of this affair if he possibly can, no matter whom he uncovers as he digs."

She breathed a little sigh. "Of course I appreciate all that and I have tried to reason with him, but he would not listen to me any more than he did to you. He almost swore when I begged him to ignore me and tell you men all about himself. While I would stake my life upon his innocence of all complicity in this matter, I can explain to you in only one way, and I cannot force myself to believe even that." Our eyes met squarely.

"I am certain there is no other woman in the case; Bruce is not that kind," I stated positively.

She reddened and her hands became tight little fists. "No, I will not believe such a thing of him," she cried with a slight quivering of the lips. Quickly she arose and passed into my uncle's apartments with head on high. It seemed too bad that I had been obliged to mention such a distasteful thing, but I know well enough that despite herself it was hovering in her mind, and I wanted to add my convictions of his moral honesty to her own. It distressed me to see her unhappy, but deeming it best to let her have a little time in which to compose herself I did not follow her, leaving the house almost immediately thereafter, and in fact avoiding any further contact with my uncle that day. A little later I had gotten Mrs. Dues on the telephone and told her that I would like to see her as I was the possessor of rather startling news. She asked me to come to her at once.

She did not seem to be as surprised or interested at my recital as I thought the tale warranted. To be sure her eyes quickly arose to mine when I told her of the crime, and she gave me her undivided attention until I had finished; then seemed to be turning the affair over in her own mind, for she allowed several minutes to elapse without comment.

"Whom do you suspect? I mean you personally?" she then asked me. I requested that she pledge herself to secrecy, which she did with a little laugh that told me that she considered such a formula superfluous.

"I suspect absolutely no one. Yet I am puzzled and worried by Bruce's conduct. I do not attach much importance to his denial of having the key, and our failure to find it, although I cannot account for the denial part of it. Neither do I give great weight to his words about his going to get hold of a large sum of money. I take it he granted that when he said he was going to raise it somehow or other it was with the mental reservation that it was to be done honestly, of course. Also when it comes to his absolute refusal to tell us where he was last night I can imagine a solution of that, for when a man is under the influence of liquor he will sometimes do things that he would not think of were he in his right mind. It is also on record that sleep walkers are sometimes commit burglaries when they are in a trance and are utterly irresponsible for their actions. Take that recent case that everybody was talking about. The person involved attended a dance and became very tired, fell asleep on the way home, skilfully broke into his own house and robbed himself of money that he had hidden away, and the next morning remembered nothing about the matter. It was long afterwards that he happened to stumble across the money which he had secreted in his subconscious state."

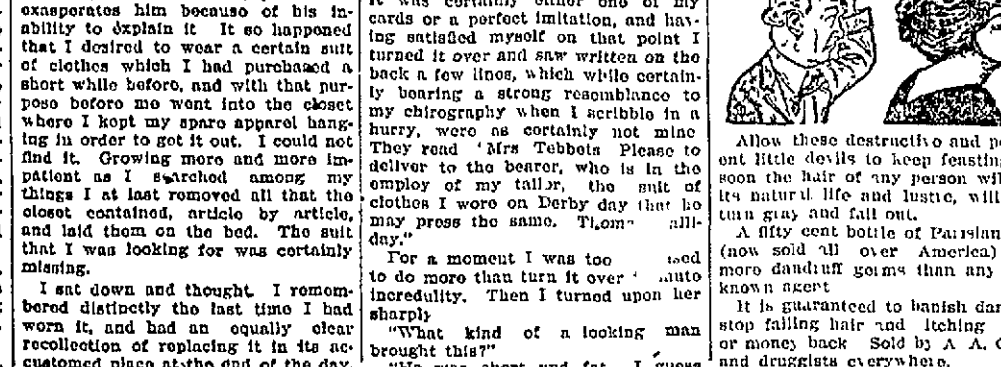

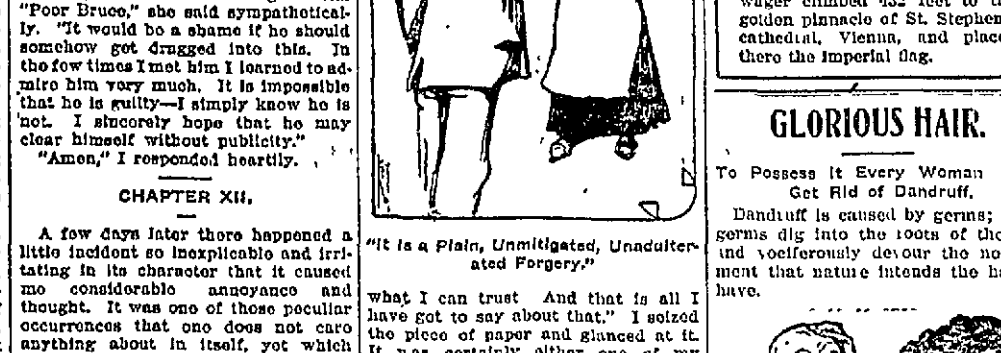

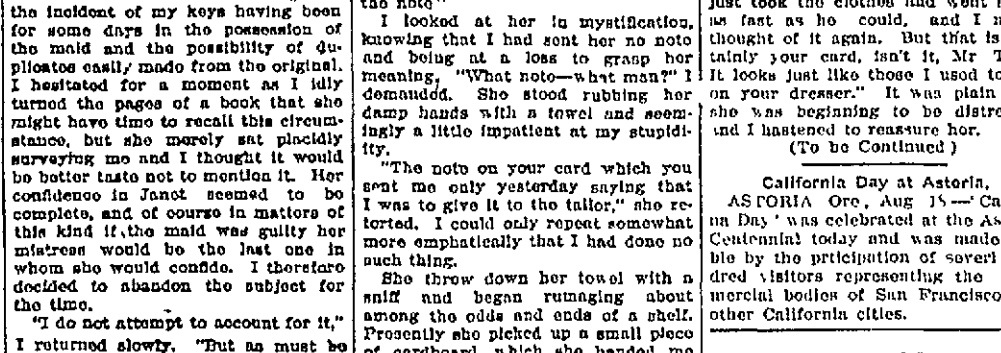

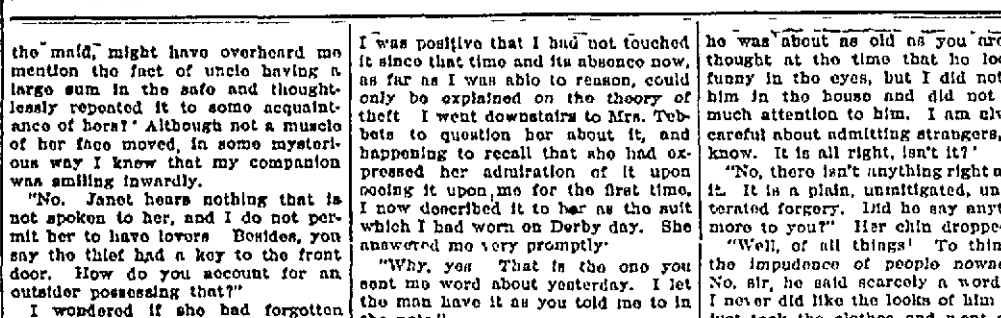

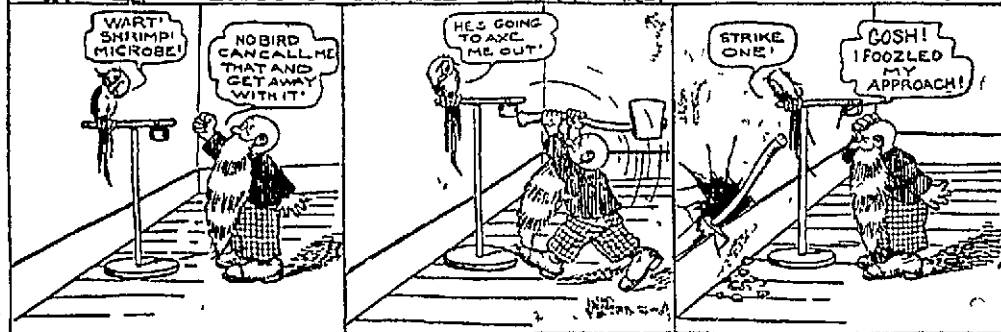

She did not appear to be particularly impressed by my statement. "I am inclined to believe that whoever robbed your uncle at least thought he knew what he was about," she answered with what I imagined was a faint suggestion of sarcasm. "However, Bruce, being somewhat indisposed and in an excited state, might have unconsciously let fall a remark in some public place, which, in connection with his peculiar exhibiting the key, led to its being stolen from him and the perpetration of the crime by some one else," I acquiesced.

"I have thought of that as a possible solution of the reason as to why he will not reveal his whereabouts, and I am certain it will not escape LeDuc. Perhaps Bruce is conscious of having been indiscreet in his speech or actions and is ashamed to talk about it. But this much is fairly certain. It is too great a stretch of the imagination to conceive that the attack upon the safe at this particular time was made at hap hazard. The one who did it knew to a certainty that the money was in the house and so far as we now know but four persons in the world had that knowledge, namely, Uncle Abner, Bruce, myself and—" I paused, clearing my throat and giving her an opportunity to interrupt me if she chose. She did so promptly.

"You told me," she said sweetly. "Therefore it seems to lie between Bruce and myself." The opening that I had been waiting for was now before me and I thrust at it. "Is it not barely possible that Janet,

First Photos of Fatal Aviation Contest Scenes in Chicago, Where Johnstone and Badger Fell to Death.

CHICAGO, Aug. 18.—The death of aviator William J. Badger, member of a wealthy Pittsburg family, and St. Croix Johnstone of Chicago in the presence of 500,000 spectators here on the fourth day of the meet at Grant park does not appear to have put any damper on the interest in airplane flying here. The popularity of aerial performances continues unabated. The inquest into the deaths of the aviators will be held Saturday, August 19. Badger was killed by a propeller broken by the engine of his biplane in front of the grandstand. He was still living when he was taken from the wreckage, but died immediately after his arrival at a hospital to which he was hurried in an ambulance. Johnstone, whose father is a Chicago physician, fell from Lake Michigan from a height of 1,000 feet, nearly an hour before he was taken to the Chicago Yacht Club.

LEISENRING KEEPS LEAD FOR THE CUP.

Checks Ambition of Southwest in Snappy Game Yesterday.

VISITORS STARTED OUT WELL

Their Two Run Lead in the First Looked Big Until Leisenring Did Some Swatting Later in the Contest—Finerty Ties Well.

When Leisenring and Southwest started yesterday's contest on the hill overlooking the domain of Charles B. Frauka, neither team had sustained defeat in the rivalry for the Lynch cup. An hour and a half later Southwest's pennant aspirations had sustained a check and Leisenring's lead increased correspondingly. It happened by a 2 to 1 score.

To be frank the Frauka aggregation must show better form than yesterday to bring home the silver goblet donated by President Thomas Lynch. Finerty's masterful pitching was a factor, but the team showed an unsteadiness in the field that boded ill for the future. Finerty started a bad mess in the sixth inning which can be attributed to naught but "rattles," and the other players threatened to become flustered in sympathy. Fortunately Leisenring led and disastrous consequences were averted.

Southwest garnered a few of the laurels. In the first inning, after two men were out, the unusual feat of hitting a single, double, triple and home run was performed, but it netted only two runs. The hits did not come in proper sequence to make the most scores.

After Southwest had copped two runs in the first inning they looked like winners even if their long hits were somewhat of the nature of flukes; hard enough, but handily badly.

Sam Jones started the trouble by misjudging King's fly and turning it into a triple. On the next play Moogan let W. Melana's single bound over his head and he converted into a home run. Cover added to the comedy by getting tangled up in the bounce of J. King's liner, which went for a double. Rehanek's single was clean. Of the four hits in this inning one should have been an easy out, rolling the side, with the others only clean singles and nothing more.

Leisenring didn't look much better than a 19 to 1 shot as a pennant possibility until the third inning when four runs were scored. W. Melana lost the plate, passing one man and hitting another. Finerty scored when Bernat threw Slay's drive wild to the plate. Westerberg beat Clark's slow toss home when Slay hit towards second. Slay was nailed at the pin by a good throw home by W. Melana of Smith's bunt. As a squeeze play the maneuver was spoiled because Westerberg did not have a long lead on third. Sam Jones fanned but Gotsie and Smith scored when Finerty sent a screaming drive into right field for a base. That ended the scoring. Leisenring followed another out of runs in the next session, had fielding and successive singles by Slay, Gotsie and Smith making them possible.

In the sixth Leisenring threatened to throw the game. Rehanek started the trouble with a single to left, Jones being too deep to annex the sky-scaper. Clark hit a vicious one to Finerty, who broke it down and then hurled it to the bleachers when there was no chance to catch the runner. Rehanek pulled up on third. Rehanek was nailed at the plate on Smith's throw of Janetsen's boulder but Finerty hit Varnock after dropping the third strike and Slay hurried wild to the pan after recovering the ball.

Two runs resulted. Westerberg's single and Slay's triple in the eighth inning gave Leisenring its last run. The score.

Cup Series Goals.
Honors yesterday belong to Slay.

The hit with the free pate not only hit like a leaden ball but played an all star game in the field despite his one clunker.

Finerty pulled himself together despite a disheartened start. One of his hits sent two runners scurrying over the plate.

Ginger Gotsie drew one hit, had a nasty error, anchored two pop flies that sailed high into the clouds and made an assist.

Smith had a busy afternoon at second base. He handled six chances like a veteran and did effective work with the stick, making his one hit produce two runs.

Melana had Jones' goat. The range had fanned three times in succession but managed to connect, batting left handed, even if he could not drive the ball safe.

Captain Westerberg was kept busy at short but did not make an error. Westerberg has only two bad faults as team leader; he tries to cover too much territory and does not call the plays when two or three men start flying. Several collisions were narrowly avoided because the man to make the play was not called. Westerberg is a polished player and is getting mighty good results from the material he has.

Finerty is playing unusually well behind the bat this year. "Squaw" has a better opportunity to shine this year.

Cover played only half the game. With two on he nailed a line drive in the fourth that would have scored both men had it gone safe. "Beanie" got a hand for the catch but would have deserved his release if he missed it. The play was a pretty one from the standpoint of the spectators but not particularly brilliant. Cover is playing a good game for Leisenring and is rapidly gaining the confidence he lost early in the season. Bill Sheets filled in during the last few innings but failed to do much more than mull a fly.

Moogan was kept busy in right. Southwest seemed to enjoy hitting in that territory. "Dad" drew Leisenring's first hit although it did not net a run.

Varnock's wing was working well although he failed to nail any pilferers. He throws quickly and accurately but was unfortunate in yesterday's game.

Clark, at second, also put up a neat folding game, with his five putouts and an assist.

W. Melana is only a youngster. With more seasoning he should develop into a second Jack Quinn. With perfect support, results might have been different yesterday.

King, who played first for Southwest, not only covered the cushion in grand style but hit like a fiend. He is a valuable man and deserves lots of credit for the fine race Southwest is making.

Soforic does not seem to have a strong wing but he wiped the ball to first in time to retire six runners. He picks them out of the dirt prettily.

Melana did not get the support the score indicates. Several Leisenring bingles were somewhat scratchy.

Trade in Connellsville Wright-Metzler Co.

Crowds Streaming In—Remnants Pouring Out.

Again have Connellsville people discriminated between the truly great and the second, third and fourth-raters. Ten minutes after our doors opened Thursday salespeople were working like beavers making out sales checks whose figures stand for only one-fourth to one-half the value of the goods that hundreds of eager customers are snapping up fast as they can get from counter to counter. But a half year's accumulation of remnants is a mountain to move. Despite the speediest selling we ever knew closing time found nearly half the remnants left over, and they're a good half, too; all couldn't be placed on sale at one time. Today will be crowded even fuller of value-giving extraordinary.
